THE TENTH ANNUAL TOWN AND COUNTRY ART EXHIBITION

University of Illinois College of Agriculture in cooperation with the College of Fine and Applied Arts

Hall of Casts, Architecture Building, Taft Drive, Champaign
October 9 through 23, 1965

We are proud to present the final choices of an interpretive-selective representation of 5,755 art works from 2,807 amateur artists from 56 counties in Illinois.

The tenth annual Illinois Town and Country Art Exhibition reflects the rapidly growing interest of Illinois residents in arts and crafts endeavors.

Eleven University of Illinois jurors, with 24 art critics from cooperating colleges and universities in the state, selected 547 junior and adult division winners at 45 local and area exhibits. From the county winners, 627 pieces were eligible to enter the five regional exhibits. A team of three jurors chose 97 works of art by 96 artists, representing 41 widely distributed counties, to be displayed at this exhibit.

Jurors for the state exhibit were Laura Chapman, George N. Foster, and Frank Gunter. They awarded blue ribbons to those entries that they considered to merit special recognition.

Many of the art works are for sale at the prices indicated. Arrangements for purchase should be made with the artist.

A DECADE OF ILLINOIS AMATEUR ART

This year we are celebrating the tenth anniversary of the Town and Country Art Exhibition. The 1964 catalogue included a short history of this project by Professors H. F. Breen and D. E. Frith. Now, as part of this tenth-year celebration, we wish to point out some of the people, places, and programs that have played an outstanding role in the art exhibits of past years.

In 1955, Extension editor Hadley Read, returning from the Minnesota Farm and Home Week, brought a catalogue of the Rural Artists Exhibit in that state, to which he appended this note: "Duke, why not have one of these shows with our Farm and Home Week?"

We thought it was a good idea. But would the rural people of Illinois be interested in contributing their talents to such an exhibit? Could we depend on the Leisurecraft and Counseling Camp, the county craft schools, and the 4-H crafts projects to provide a source of exhibitors? Home economists Mary McKee, Dorothy Iwig, Marian Kaiser, and others had done and were doing a great deal in the home economics local leader training schools to further the appreciation of arts and crafts. Also, Professor John Klassen was working in this field with people who attended summer camps and workshops. And each 4-H camp in the state had a program counselor in crafts. Would these projects provide the resources for a state exhibit?

The Division of University Extension, through the tireless efforts of Professor Walter M. Johnson, was also taking art courses to various communities throughout the state. Surely this group would offer the potential for an amateur art exhibit. "Indeed!" said Walter, "this is just the opportunity we have been looking for to bring together the scattered efforts of functional educational, recreational, and personal pursuits in arts and crafts. Such an exhibit would give us some idea of what we might do to help amateur art."

A meeting was arranged with Dean A. S. Weller of the College of Fine and Applied Arts. Present were Professors Glenn Bradshaw, Nicholas Britsky, George Foster, Don Frith, and Walter Johnson. This contact did more than give the sanction of the college to such an event. It brought the active support and cooperation of these men and their colleagues.

The results of this action were then presented to Dean Louis B. Howard of the College of Agriculture. Dean Howard promptly appointed a committee consisting of L. E. Anderson, D. A. Brown, Jessie Heathman, E. H. Regnier, and Dorothy O. Twardock to plan, promote, and prepare a rural arts show for the Fifty-Fifth Farm and Home Week to be held from January 29 to February 2, 1956. Dean Weller asked Glenn Bradshaw and George Foster to serve as consultants to this committee.

The first task of the committee was to prepare an announcement of the exhibit to send to possible participants, county advisers, project leaders, and the press and radio. L. E. Anderson, Walter Johnson, and Don Frith designed the announcement and outlined the entry rules. It was thrilling to receive responses from such distant parts of the state as Cache (near Cairo), Payson (near Quincy), and Grayslake (north of Chicago).

The rule that limited exhibitors to residents of rural Illinois (the open country and towns of less than 10,000) seemed to lend courage to the shy artist to enter the exhibit. Most of the first entries, however, came from Edgar and Piatt counties, where local groups had arranged area exhibits from which the committee could select items for the state exhibit. W. E. Perisho, Edgar County artist, and E. D. Lyon of Monticello each picked up a load of items to bring to the University for the exhibit. The Agriculture Library was hardly large enough for the 100 entries in the first exhibit, which represented the work of 42 artists from 19 Illinois communities. The jury, consisting of Johnson, Bradshaw, Foster, and Frith, selected 10 pieces to receive special citations.

Highlights of the first exhibit were gallery features consisting of demonstrations in ceramics by Don Frith, oil painting by George Foster, watercolor by Glenn Bradshaw, and miniatures by Nella Van Wyk, a guest artist from Johannesburg, South Africa. The response and enthusiasm of Farm and Home Week participants, faculty, and staff to the exhibit were great enough to insure its continuance from year to year as a regular part of the Farm and Home Week program.

The last Farm and Home Week was held in 1962. But the Town and Country Art Exhibition still goes on. For the past two years it has been held as an independent event on the University campus. We hope this tenth-anniversary exhibit will be the best ever and that you will enjoy seeing what our rural artists have accomplished in the years since the first exhibit was held back in 1955.

REGIONAL TOWN AND COUNTRY ART EXHIBITIONS

There were five Regional Town and Country Art Exhibitions held throughout the state this year. A total of 640 entries and 559 participants were eligible to exhibit in one of the five exhibits. Cooperation was obtained from three universities in the state to provide facilities for displaying the exhibits. These universities were among 12 institutions of higher learning in Illinois from which jurors for the county exhibits were chosen. The 97 works selected for this display fulfill the purpose of the regional exhibits to provide fewer and higher quality state entries on a comparative basis.
